Hangover is a point and click adventure game where you try to get ready for work after a party.

Story:

As I already summed up in the beginning, the story is basically you play as a random guy who after a party wakes up hangover and has to get ready for work. That's about all there is for story, it's nothing much, there's nothing more than just the basic set up, it literally is just that.

Graphics:

The art style at least for me is the only good bit about this game, even though it's not very good. Playing this game reminded me of my childhood playing point and click flash games with very similar art styles. Hangover art style is very simplistic and hand drawn, while it's not that special, I still liked it.

Audio:

Apart from one song you can play if you solve a puzzle, the game is silent. The song itself is rather bland, but at least it's not complete silence.

Gameplay:

As stated Hangover is a point and click adventure game, where you look for items to get to work. The game however is incredibly easy and takes no time to complete. It takes less than 2 minutes to finish the entire thing since the puzzles take no time to complete and are too easy, not to mention the game is incredibly short.

Verdict:

Hangover feels like a free flash game and that's why I can't recommend buying it. It takes less than two minutes to finish the entire thing and honestly it's not worth the money. It's easy, boring and well not worth the money when there's a sea of amazing absolutely free flash point and click games to play.

Final Rating:

2/10

Pros:

+ Art Style is not that bad

Cons:

- Short
- Feels like a free flash game
- Apart from one hidden song, the game is completely silent
